Abstract

In Lodz - a city in Poland is a district called Baluty where the new mix with the old, the streets end in the least expected places, and the numbers of houses often have no logical continuity was realized project - artistic workshops - made with children and young people. The idea of the project was to recall the pre-war image of Łódź as a multi-religious city, a multi-cultural crucible - an important factor shaping the contemporary identity of the inhabitants of Łódź. The proposed artistic activities and creative activities of the participants were a basic tool and a means to realize this idea.
